

Online Workshop 2

Longitudinal studies in low and middle income countries: International showcase

Convenors: Lisa Calderwood, Rebecca Hardy, Rafael Novella, University College London, UK

Friday 1st October 2021

14:00 – 17:15 (London, BST)

The aims of the workshop are to showcase longitudinal research resources around the world and give attendees a chance to find out more about a number of longitudinal studies in low and middle income countries (LMICs). The workshop will take place on the 1st of October 2021. Each presentation will consist of a short 10-minute talk providing an overview of the study, focusing on the scientific content and design, and giving information about how researchers can access the data. There will also be time for questions and discussion.
